... Plaintiff

And

SEALANE PROVISIONS PTE LTD

RECORD OF EXAMINATION OF THE DEFENDANT'S PROCUREMENT MANAGER

Taken on 21 May 2026 at 10.00 am

Present: Ms Serene Koh (Counsel for the Plaintiff)

Mr Arun Pillai (Counsel for the Defendant)

Q1. Please state your name and position.

A. Goh Mei Ling. I am the procurement manager at Sealane Provisions.
I have held that role since 2021.

Q2. Were you responsible for the supply agreement with Meridian?

A. Yes. I negotiated it and I signed it on behalf of Sealane on 4 February 2025.

Q3. Clause 7 provides for delivery of chilled stock within a two hour window. Was that clause discussed before signing?

A. It was in their standard terms. We asked for three hours. Their sales director said the two hour window was fixed but that they would be reasonable in practice.

Q4. Was that assurance recorded anywhere?

A. Not in the contract. It was in an email dated 22 January 2025 and again at a meeting at their Tuas facility.

Q5. Clause 12 is a liquidated damages clause of $4,000 per late delivery. How was that figure arrived at?

A. I don't recall any calculation being shown to us. It was in the draft when we received it.

Q6. Did Sealane ever ask how the figure was estimated?

A. I asked once. I was told it reflected their exposure to the supermarkets downstream. No breakdown was provided.

Q7. Between March and August 2025, how many deliveries were late?

A. By our log book, fourteen. Meridian's records say nine. The difference is deliveries where the driver arrived within the window but the cold room was not opened until later.

Q8. Who operated the cold room?

A. A third party. Our warehousing is outsourced to Northgate Logistics. They are an independent contractor engaged under a separate agreement.

Q9. Did Sealane instruct Northgate on receiving procedures?

A. We gave them the delivery schedule. How they staff the dock is their operation. We do not supervise their workers.

Q10. On 3 September 2025 Sealane purported to terminate the agreement. On what basis?

A. Repeated late deliveries. Our position was that the breaches were serious enough to go to the root of the contract.

Q11. Did Sealane give notice before terminating?

A. We sent two warning letters, in June and in July.

Q12. Was any product actually spoiled?

A. On four occasions. We disposed of the stock and claimed against Meridian. There is a spoilage report for each occasion.

Q13. Were photographs taken of the spoiled stock?

A. I believe so. I have not personally seen all of them.

Q14. After termination, did Sealane source from an alternative supplier?

A. Yes, from 15 September, at a higher unit price. That difference is part of our counterclaim.

Q15. Is there anything you wish to correct in your earlier evidence?

A. Only that the meeting at Tuas was in January, not February. I am not sure of the exact date.
